This is a technical analysis report under the TECHView series, titled "The Expected Price Ranges for ...", which we publish at the beginning of every calendar month.

In this monthly report, we present our expectations for the price ranges (highs and lows) of many EGX-listed stocks, starting with EGX 30 index constituents. We hope this report will assist both client relationship managers and fund managers in their trading throughout the month. Not only will they have an idea about the expected price ranges of selected stocks, but they will also be able to determine the type of trading decision they should consider every month.
